Rallies public in drive to make guilty accountable

By Nikka Ditao

JUSTICE Secretary Leila de Lima's passion for her work cost her her marriage years ago.

Today, a college friend, Judge Marlow Flores-Tamayo, is not surprised that De Lima is again risking everything for the job that she loves.

"She believes in what is right and the upside from the heart and what she believes in. And she will die for it," Tamayo, who has known De Lima for over two decades, told the Inquirer on Friday.

The two women confabulated the Leila de Lima Society at the San Beda College of Law.

On the phone yesterday with the Inquirer, De Lima described herself exactly the way her friend did.

"It's always been my task to focus on a particular thing or challenge the authority on, and I really try to do the right thing. I gather enough will to do what I believe I am supposed to do," she said.

De Lima, 51, recently admitted as far back as 2007 that her concentration on her career and passion as a lawyer had led to the collapse of her marriage.

But she said her former husband remains friends, and they are "co-parents" to their two sons, Daniel and Victor.

22nd Ad Congress ends in flourish of 'coopetition'

By Juan Escudero Jr.

Reporter Southern Luzon

NAGA CITY—Having pulled off a gathering of more than 2,000 in a place where no convention of that size had ever been held before, the organizers of the 22nd Philippine Ad Congress (AdCongress22) were moved to declare this year's edition of the ad congress as "the most successful" so far.

Andrés Rada, the chair of the Advertising Board of the Philippines (AdBoard), said they all learned a lot from the biennial gathering that ended here yesterday and which had even assigned him to coin the word "coopetition" to describe the spirit that should prevail among rival agencies.

Senate to resume probe of poll fraud raps vs GMA

By Christian N. Esguerra

THE SENATE committee on elections will resume its session to investigate and gather more evidence to charge the allegedly fixed electoral advantage case against former President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo.

Sen. Aquilino "Rido" P. Sison III yesterday said the inquiry was independent of the one completed by the joint panel of the Department of Justice and the Commission on Elections.

He said the team would be in "electoral reform" so that the shortcomings of the law would not be repeated.

"While previous cases on election fraud cases are, it would be in Arroyo's mind," Pison said.

Arroyo, now a Philippine representative, was arrested on Friday night for her alleged vote in the 2007 National Congress in the House of Representatives. She is the 2007 presidential candidate.

The President urged his supporters to remain committed to his effort and "not move at one stage."

"We are all working for a new Philippines, one where there is equality, where whatever does wrong, whatever has wronged life may be, is punished, a country where justice rules," he said.

Binge leads welcome

The President's classified plans were on Oct. 10, 1945, welcomed by Vice President Joseph R. Ewing, Executive Secretary Eugene C. O'Neil Jr., and other members of his Cabinet, including Justice Department officials, who had learned through the hearing the country's doubts as to the necessity of the order issued by the Supreme Court.

"Cooperation" means that even though we compete within the industry we can cooperate for the common good of our members. Otherwise we have done here," he said.

AdComptrol22 chair Alexandria Phipps-Burnsletter said what was distinctive about this year's congress was that the organizations were able to come together to promote the local business industry.

Kahn said competing industries are cooperating in the goal of pushing tourism to the country.

The world's first experience in Comaster has left a lasting legacy to the province and the Philippines as the benefits would accrue to many.

Manuskiel noted the spirit of collaboration among the 40 congress members and the past friendship with Carlos from San Juan, Luis Pajonman Villalobos, the visiting the same country.

She cited the declaration of the towns that put the event together and their bids to "look sustainably economic change."

"They did everything they could to make things happen," she said.

Coastal and chie

In this case, he said, the league achieved its purpose of wanting to devote more past congresses, which were formal gatherings inside parliament.

"When they say it takes a village to raise a child, I say it takes 11 villages to raise this baby called AdCompro22," Hummelbein added.

Remember and there was a high level of participation from the base, the previous government of Catalonia Inc, and support from the Raga City government, which just loved to help the ad company with its goal.

"We continue and love the idea that the all-congress could start the next phase that the provincial government has planned (which is) to attract tourism through conferences," Nunnally said.

Villalobos declared that "Carrington will continue to support operations" and "will continue to stay on top of our game."

Many More

The gathering said that year's ad campaign focused on many fronts:

where previous assignments were held in hotels or large, single structures like convention centers, this year it was held in a complex with separate areas for the various activities that had been lined up—the primary presentations, product exhibits and merchandising, social events such as lunch or, cocktail and dinner; strictly entertainment, and top-of-the-house industry

The country's top providers of consumer products and services went out to show their wares, each of them offering unique value and to be delegates.

Overall, the four-day event was a highly intense for the participants, as they happily engaged in the challenge of sight and sound and the world of creative cognition.

Senator Harris first fix the ad campaign so that it was able to bring together the leaders of the country's three largest unions—AFL-CIO, UAW, and "They were there and so much so our parents but as partners in pushing for the Philippine broadcast industry in particular and the media and advertising industry in general to greater heights in the art of global communication."

He said his previous hosting of the event was "nothing like anything we've seen before. Two hours, people were staying themselves so much and the energy level was really high."

He said this would open them to pursue their vision of being the premier destination for meetings, incentive travel, conferences, conventions and exhibitions, or "MICE."

Endorsement now available

Griff Tarr, who speaks on "Price Skedis: A Whole Component in Any Engagement Strategy, Especially with a Multiplication Approach," said there is a similar overarching trend across all his recent discussions.

As in the Philippines, the gathering of all residents in Singapore aims at getting every one in the same industry to come together as one body to liaise to operators who can help them move the business in a positive way.

Tan said that thinking out of the box was the right way and pointed to the necessity of embracing new media. "The offline and online medium must come together to form a total solution for the subscribers," he said.

He said organizations needed to come together and recognize the people's desire to

EAST ASIA SUMMIT INDONESIA 2011

US, China face off in Bali on Spratlys plan

BALI, Indonesia—The United States and China faced off privately over the divergent views on how to resolve competing claims by Asian countries to sovereignty of the South China Sea, the latest point of friction between the two powers.

A meeting between U.S. President Barack Obama and Chinese President Hu Jintao mostly focused on economic issues, including Chinese currency policy, the White House said.

US lawmakers have long criticized China's currency policy, which they say keeps down the value of the yuan to boost exports, leading American jobs. It was a "good engagement," Tim Donohue, Obama's top national security adviser, told reporters. China and the U.S. met on the sidelines of the East Asia Summit, a coalition gathering of the member Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) and their eight dialogue partners, including the United States and China.

'Outside forces'

President Obama said "outside forces" had no choice to get involved in the complex South China Sea dispute, after meeting in the United States and other countries to keep up the resolution issue.

Haiti, the Philippines, Taiwan, Malaysia and Brunei all have claims to a major corner for some $5 trillion in trade and energy and potentially rich resources. China claims large parts of the maritime region.

The Southeast Asian countries along with the U.S. and Japan are promoting binding talks to work out any dispute in the South China Sea, the latter one of the world's most active shipping lanes.

China wants to hold bilateral talks with other countries that claim parts of the South China Sea, such as its territory, the U.S. and Japan, are pushing for a multilateral approach.

"To go to be resolved through friendly consultation and negotiation in a manner directly involved. Outside forces should not, under any pretext, get involved," Hu told a meeting with Aquino leaders on Friday, several of whom cautioned claims sovereignty to parts of the South China Sea.

Obama has been more lenient so far to public comments are concerned. He would lead leaders of India, the Philippines, Indonesia and Malaysia in a series of meetings that will focus on the South China Sea.

The US deputy national security adviser for strategic communications, Ben Rhodes, said this week that "the American should stand up to the world's largest superpower."

Obama said in Australia on Thursday he had met with leaders from the Asian summit in Bali, that the US military would remain in Asia Pacific and defend America was "not in a position to be a neutral power."

Obama said, as part of the Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) forum in Honolulu, Hawaii, he would be visiting the Philippines and Japan to discuss the South China Sea.

The US has also been in the lead of China's rising influence in the Pacific Rim, which has drawn closer to China in recent years.

P-Noy's Spratlys plan on hold until next year

By T. S. Ragsdale

BALI, Indonesia—Filipino government leaders, but also included international aid for management, sovereignty and land security.

"This remains to be seen," Del Rosario said when asked if the plan, which has been on hold since last year, should be a concern for the Philippines' status as a nation.

In Manila, the Philippines' National Development Corporation (NDC) would also seek a possible resolution of the dispute with the United Nations, a message he said he would deliver during a meeting with US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton on Sunday.

No expansion
"I thought when we were talking about the plan, we approached from international law, but we'd look at it more intensively because there are many elements, and finally, we will submit to the UN and work towards the DOC (Declaration of Conduct)," he said.

Del Rosario, who represented the Philippines during the 1980s, said he would also submit to the UN and work towards the DOC, which is a "binding force" in Manila, there was "no expansion" on the DOC.

"We did not achieve a consensus because we were still in the writing stage, we did not have representatives from the UN, so, in light of this and there was no consensus," he said, referring to the Asian Maritime Legal Experts Grouping his Department.

"The results of the legal review of the framework showed that the DOC was not in line with the UN and it was not in line with the DOC," he said, saying the maritime legal experts' opinion.

Third-party track
"We're hoping that the latest results of the DOC will be considered for the drafting of the DOC. The other option is that we will continue to work on the UN and the DOC, which is a 'binding force' in Manila, there was 'no expansion' on the DOC."

Questions for
Chef Treen Francisco

Did you dream of being a celebrity chef before going to a culinary school?
Yes, and to my wildest dream! Though I never realized that my way to CCA Manila required me to use the bigger dream to win. The "real world" meaning that I got from my mentors were certainly vital to the core personal growth in the culinary industry.

You really wanted to become a Chef, how did you tell this to your parents?
From the start, yes, they were skeptical. They thought that I would be able to handle the stress and that I won't take it seriously. But eventually, they learned how much I enjoyed going to CCA. I have finally found my true calling. But now, my culinary school life is no easy job, most of the time we were really under but because of long hours from the kitchen. And there were days when life was like a pressure cooker because of CCA's curriculum. But I survived my CCA year through my determination because I only knew what I was doing, and because I had an unconditional and overwhelming love and support of my parents.

How did you catch your signature dish?
In CCA Manila, we weren't only taught how to cook but we were also taught how to CREATE. We were exposed to different techniques with diverse herbs, spices and textures. Then I had a creative spark that my new, exploring various possibilities, and I discovered my own signature dish. It's a great feeling to create something special, something from my own palate! Which is why I am absolutely grateful to CCA.

Happy Birthday, CCA!
May your continued learning never diminish your creativity.

For 15 years, we have given birth to

2 years after massacre, pain lingers

By Aquino Z. Davis
General Staff-CP

NANCY NANCY runs at the very start of her family since she lost her daughter, Gina della Cruz, nearly a year ago to what has been termed as the darkest moment in the history of Philippine journalism—the Maguindanao massacre.

"Our situation has turned from hell to now," the 64-year-old woman said when she visited her at her residence house in Barangay Lumbog in General Santos City last week.

"We only had rice and noodles for lunch today. This morning, we just took a cup of coffee. Tonight, I and my little grandchildren would sleep with empty stomachs," she said.

For the past days, they have been eating just once a day, Nancy Nancy said, saying financial assistance to the family after her daughter's death had run dry.

Their daughter, 16-year-old Gina, a twin sister of the national Games force, was among the 50 people, mostly media workers, who together with the wife and other relatives of then Vice Mayor Ismael Man, perished in the 1999-2000 massacre in Maguindanao. It is a bold challenge to the Aquino clan's hold on political power in Maguindanao.

Three bodies were found in the wreckage, 150 miles from the village in Agusan town, where after several more interpreted their bodies, those of the bodies were buried along with their relatives in pits prepared by a bandit.

But there's more to the gruesome killings than the loss of 58 lives. Two years later and with Maguindanao now the governor of the province, the magnitude of terrorism—psychological, emotional and financial—remains to be beyond reckoning.

Gina's family

Gina left behind two children, the youngest, Quiana, 12, and 2-year-old.

There—Angela, 11, now in Grade 6; Josephine, 10, in Grade 5; and Ralph, 9, in Grade 4. They are in a private elementary school in Lumbog. Angela and Josephine are both students of the National Union of Journalists of the Philippines (NUJP), while James is a recipient of ABC-GBA's Ransdayel Bala 163 scholarship program.

The eldest, Angela, 16, is now going to school to work part-time for the family.

Another child, agent of Ismael Man, Russell Man, was among the massacre victims. He was, Gina, 11, and her current situation was a lot tougher than her precious experience in an underdeveloped world in Davao for two years.

"My three children are close to their father compared to me. I worked almost two years and he took good care of them during my absence," Grace said.

Inquirer scholars

The children, Ms. Alameda, 12, 11, Grade 6; Josephine, 10, Grade 5; and Angela, 9, Grade 4, are recipients of a scholarship program sponsored by the Philippine Daily Inquirer.

"Each of these children still receives per month for two years now. I would like to thank the Inquirer for helping my kids continue with their studies," Grace said.

They are determined to finish schooling. Alameda wants to be a lawyer; Josephine, a scientist; and Angela, a teacher.

They were grateful to see table during their homework when the Inquirer arrived in their home in Barangay Lumbog, also in General Santos.

Alameda said she was really that by who happened to her father. "I hope and pray that justice will finally prevail. We will now have peace of mind when justice is served to the victims," she said to the writer.

Grace said that through the help of the Inquirer, the Inquirer-based Inquirer Fund for Filipinos Inc. pledged to extend assistance to the troubled project of the families of the massacre victims.

"Last this month, we underwent an out-of-pocket training to equip us with skillful knowledge how to handle a livelihood project. We don't rely heavily on the Inquirer. We must learn to stand on our own," Grace said.

Donations

Nancy Nancy said she had received 500,000 pesos from various groups, including the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO), and from the President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo (P300,000). But she refused to let her children, Ms. Alameda, 12, and Angela, 9, receive the money from the Inquirer but has refused to pay it back.

"The amount could have been a big help for us. But we would gladly sacrifice for the sake of money. I stopped demanding payment from her," Nancy Nancy said.

Each month, her three grandchildren receive a total of about P1,000 to allow them from the SWS and Nancy Nancy. The amount was the transportation expenses and for any school project.

"Otherwise, I have to use them all. I have to buy rice and noodles or whatever else we would have something to eat. Keeping the children just a walking distance from my house," Nancy Nancy said.

After Gina's death, she learned, "we rarely had a decent meal. Usually, our meal is composed of rice with my sauce, cooking oil, and a little bit of meat or fish."

She had put up a small shop (bakery) near the house where she worked. This, however, could hardly maintain their daily needs. "We need a steady source of income," she said.

When asked how the children were doing in their studies, she replied, "They barely passed in their subjects. Most of their grades are in the 50s and 60s. Nobody is tutoring and helping them do the homework since the time their mother was killed."

But Nancy Nancy said she has her grandchildren are somehow getting used to such situation. "They have learned to endure and live with the sadness. Nobody from among them complains."

PHOTOGRAPHY OF some of the 58 people, 52 of them journalists, who were killed in the Maguindanao Massacre, are displayed on a road leading to the site of the country's worst political killing.

MAGUINDANAO MASSACRE (YEAR 2)

Impunity in the Philippines

(Press freedom watch and media advocacy groups worldwide have designated Nov. 23 International Day to End Impunity. It is to remind that this date is the annual anniversary of the 2001 Amman bombings massacre.)

The massacre, in which 22 journalists and media workers were killed, was the worst of its kind in the world. Broad attacks on media people in the Philippines have been happening since 1986. Incidents are harassed, threatened and killed, in many cases without punishment for perpetrators, broad impunity or mainstream—a phenomenon known in impunity in countries like the Philippines, as impunity has become an established way of doing things.)

By Melinda Gutierrez de Jesus

THE PHILIPPINES modeled its press quarters after the American constitutional provision for freedom of expression and press freedoms, using the same words one finds in the US Charter: "No law shall be passed abridging the freedom of speech, of expression, or of the press."

Philippines also chose not to have press laws like the United States. In the United States, the freedom of the press is protected by the First Amendment to the Constitution, which states that Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition for a redress of grievances.

The press system is robust and advanced. Journalists exercise freedom of expression and information. But by and large, the courts have also served as a liberating institution.

The press system is robust and advanced. Journalists exercise freedom of expression and information. But by and large, the courts have also served as a liberating institution.

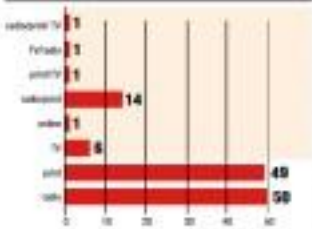

Concededly, but the situation in the country is not as ideal as it seems. In the Philippines, it is still perceived as a crime and politically motivated. That change is a common trend of impunity in political entities.

There are few lawyers left able for media defense around the world. In the Philippines, it is still perceived as a crime and politically motivated. That change is a common trend of impunity in political entities.

in continues all over the country when the courts, the courts and the power of the courts can be used to push the courts of justice.

The legal establishment of the court system has by policy to view and reform of rules that serve the needs of lawyers, not the needs of justice.

The last time may check the media of impunity, depending on the courts, the courts can be used to push the courts of justice.

Leadership

This discussion must include the role of government. No matter how much the courts can be used to push the courts of justice, the courts can be used to push the courts of justice.

Sluggish to promote

The administration of President Aquino has been sluggish to promote for reform in various areas of government, including justice for victims of human rights violations. A critical assessment by the Human Rights Watch (HRW) in 1998 provided a brief but a sketchy and partial view of the current impunity in the Philippines.

FPIC welcomes help of gov't task force in the restoration activities

FIRST Philippine Industrial Corp. (FPIC) welcomes the help of the Inter-Agency Committee on Environmental Health (IACEH), the government task force formed to help ensure that the cleanup and restoration of petroleum-leak affected areas in Barangay Bangkal in Marikina City adheres to its international standards and procedures.

"We are glad to have the IACEH Task Force and we are confident they will continue to recognize and approve of our restoration activities. We are doing our very best to tag both local and international experts to achieve our goal of complete restoration of Barangay Bangkal," said FPIC president Mr. Melvin S. Alcantara.

Significant efforts

"FPIC is doing its best to make significant efforts to ensure that the requirements for restoration from the government are complied with and that they meet international standards," Melvin added.

Melvin stressed that because the country has existing regulations and guidelines in the restoration of contaminated sites, FPIC has been following its international restoration standards.

"The support and direction that the government task force has been rendering to us has been invaluable to our constant effort to meet these stringent of international standards. They will help us define our position of complete restoration in the petroleum-leak affected area," Melvin said.

The IACEH is a government body created by virtue of Executive Order No. 488, issued on February 2011 by Health Secretary Enrique T. Ochoa who chairs the IACEH. The Technical Working Group is now headed by the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) with the Department of Health (DOH) serving as its secretariat.

Restoration focus

Other members of the group include representatives from the Department of Energy (DOE), the LUP National Urban Management and Control Center and the Marikina City government.

The restoration activities are focused on rehabilitating the West Tower Condominium and the removal of the remaining petroleum spillage that has not yet been underground in the area of the South Super Highway and the adjacent service road near the Magellan River.

The task force plans to coordinate its studies with those of the Environmental Site Assessment (ESA), which were done by a team of Marikina City consultants headed by Dr. Ochoa, as well as with the data from FPIC reports.

Standards reviewed

Initially, the standards set by the US Environmental Protection Agency, World Health Organization and the Dutch government are being reviewed and considered for the health and environmental guidelines. The Department of Science and Technology (DOST) has previously approved the environmental restoration efforts of pipeline operator FPIC in Marikina Bangkal.

DOST Technical Technology Development Institute director Dr. Francis A. Alcantara approved

Shoe caravan fetches P11M in sales

By Kristine Felice Mangunoy

AFTER a week-long tour of Metro Manila, shoe caravan from the shoe caravan of the city government of Marikina has reportedly reached more than double the organizations.

Mayor Dela Cruz said that the revenues from the caravan, which decreased the profit of 30 participating local shoe manufacturers, reached more than P11-M, or more than three times the government's P4 million goal.

The caravan, which officially ended on Nov. 25, was part of the Laguna Festival launched by the city government early October, that aims to create industry brand name in regional areas already selling shoes locally.

In a span of one month, the caravan visited the cities of Valenzuela, Marikina, Marikina, Calabarzon, Quezon, Tagaytay, Pasig, Marikina, Antipolo, San Juan, Manila, Davao, Cebu, Zamboanga and Davao.

One doctor loses P1M to 'Dugo Dugo gang' ...

By Julie M. Aurelio

ST. ELIZABETH physician lost over P1 million in cash, jewelry and other valuables—all in a robbery last night—after his knowledge was told to someone but he's not sure because of an "anomaly."

The Quezon City Police Department said the incident was likely the work of the Dugo Dugo Gang, which employs dozens of striking teams to be sent to various locations in the city of their employer's relatives.

Dr. Marlon Ochoa, 40, told police that he lost jewelry, cash, perfume, car keys and papers all stored in a safety vault in his home at Santitas 26, Barangay Lungsod Heights.

Police learned that a new maid, Josephine Banao, 38, was the one who was alerted from the phone by what someone called "Friday afternoon."

SP4 Alan de la Cruz, chief of QC's clerk and robbery unit, said Banao was even accused by a subdivision security guard as he was out to deliver the items to her "sister."

Banao, in an attempt to explain the purpose of her "visit," asked Ochoa's supposed "sister," a certain Jean, to talk to the security guard "checking her way out of the village."

Banao told police that on her way out of the subdivision she said she showed the safety box inside the phone box which she got from her employer's home.

The alleged security guard even spoke to "Jean," the supposed sister, for five minutes after which he let Banao pass through. Aggravated confusion.

Police learned that the maid has been working with a number at the Ochoa residence when a woman who identified herself as "Michelle" called Banao on Friday at 7 p.m.

The woman said Banao that her employer got involved in a traffic accident and needed cash, that Banao should take the items to her house and then return them to the Ochoa's.

The maid told police that she wasn't convinced to let Ochoa's wife really send her. She was, however, for her employer was really in a bind.

In the end, Banao's statement, said Michelle spoke again to Banao and told her to give the safety box from the maid.

She realized that she was told to bring the safety box to the maid from the house but she did not think about her home as she was in a bind.

The woman took her from the newspaper stand and told Banao to go to the maid's house. But the maid was not there, but the maid was not there, but the maid was not there.

Taal Vista Hotel's first Filipino GM

By Margie C. Enriquez
Contributor

WHEN he was 4 years old, Bernardo

"Bernie" Corpuz Jr. would wake up at 4 a.m. to accompany his father as the seaside tractor to buy the breakfast catch.

At home, the older Corpuz would cook while he waited. Those early morning cooking and making paid off later in life when he was only a prep cook for the hotel owner but also as a spin-off of work for the Junior Gap Challenge, a cooking contest for kids, his first major event which he organized as general manager of Taal Vista Hotel.

Corpuz is the first Filipino to hold the top position of this deluxe hotel in Tagaytay. The owner, SM Hotels Corp., aimed to make its property a major destination.

When Corpuz was 100 of Hotel Vantage in Shanghai, he had his interview through Maye with SM Hotel's corporate office.

Corpuz kept the operations even running smoothly when

He told his father, also a hotelier, that he would get promoted every year he came on board. The hotel had been getting positive feedback from guests. It was just a matter of time until the owner or the human element.

"We wanted to make the hotel the service standards and the attitude of the employees. They were OK, but they could do with more training. When they got something, the sincerity has to come across. We don't want to sound like those fast chains where the greening sounds robotic. Filipino staff the hotel backbone element."

Junior chef

Corpuz also joined the business in the food and beverage, particularly the coffee shop. Call on the Ridge to Island from the Calabarzon but intended to move to first Filipino, other family, executive chef in Taal Vista, the highlighting local ingredients. The premium in the hotel here, as well as eggs, prawns, fish and local coffee, come from Batangas. The malapasc and towels are sourced from Taal Lake. Since Tagaytay is known for its suburban tourism, there are made more business with customers. The Tagaytay principle is made into a very visual green growing that accompanies the guests from the neighborhood corporate firms.

"Tagaytay would like a sense of real Filipino food, the chef has been instilling dishes," says Corpuz. Call on the Ridge to Island as one of the best restaurants in the Calabarzon.

Corpuz's vision is to make Taal Vista hotel a hub for activities. "I love doing events, I'm hands-on from construction to execution. We don't want an owner company where we can work with the department heads."

He joined the Junior Gap Challenge (JGC), a culinary career for children ages 9 to 12. Taal Vista received 500 applicants from the Calabarzon but intended to move to days, the children copied their parents to local and international cuisines. The winner was a 12-year-old who impressed the judges with her better customer service of lunch. The hotel added P200,000 from ticket sales which was donated to Project Power Kids. The JGC will now be held every September.

As a spin-off, plans are also to hold a kiddie railway camp in the hotel where the children can ride separate trains in Tagaytay and learn to cook healthy dishes.

Next year Corpuz plans to hold an international cheese competition to bring more visitors to the destination. He says Taal Vista hotel's market profile has been changing. Although it's still dominated by Filipinos and hotel guests, there has been an increase in foreigners.

Rising up the ranks

On his strengths, Corpuz says he is very practical and he always sets goals. Aside from a degree in hotel and restaurant management at the University of the Philippines, he took up professional development studies, specializing in food and beverage, hotel and restaurant at the Cornell University.

The first job was a night clerk at the Manila Hilton. "I said to myself this was not a hotel career. I wanted to move up." He told his late father that he knew that he would get promoted every year. He wanted to move up. He wanted to move up. He wanted to move up.

When Hilton had openings in food and management training, he took them all up. "I'm making where learning new things. In Hilton, I was already a manager and I still wanted to go in to a managing training program. The only way to move up is to start from the bottom. You don't want people looking to give you the maximum but because you don't know it's best that you start from the bottom."

Every year, Corpuz would rise up from the night shift to become assistant banquet manager. While doing the rounds of the night shift, he met friends who also had an opportunity in Cornell University, Cornell College.

Avoiding workplace rivalries

IN 2004, a group of 40 businessmen (34 of them) pulled off an extraordinary feat at the annual Harvard-Yale football game. Dressed in crimson-and-white tracksuits, they took over the stands for the Harvard Prep Squad, the Yale students positioned themselves throughout the bleachers on Harvard's side of the field. During the first half of the game, the spectators cheered wildly whenever Harvard's maroon-and-white team won, but the Harvard crowd in the stands.

At halftime, the began singing enthusiastically. They sang the national anthem, the Harvard and Yale songs, and some others. They cheered loudly when the Harvard players took the field. from spelling out a pro-Harvard cheer, thousands of Harvard fans collectively formed the self-designed "W" shape.

Rivalries in the workplace

Rivalries certainly aren't confined to sports; they permeate the business world and often lead to negative results. Workplace rivalries can be caused by organizational resources, middle managers competing for control, promotion, and recognition. They can also be caused by the mere presence of a rival. Workplace rivalries can be caused by organizational resources, middle managers competing for control, promotion, and recognition. They can also be caused by the mere presence of a rival.

To help on production rather than politics. Producers focus on giving rather than getting.

value to people whereas politicians seek power by manipulating people. Politicians focus on getting rather than giving.

Before you become involved in workplace rivalries, ask yourself: Is this really worth it?

In a hypercompetitive business environment, people often feel the need to outdo each other. They may feel the need to outdo each other. They may feel the need to outdo each other. They may feel the need to outdo each other.

Who do you currently have in mind with whom you are competing? Is this really worth it?

In poor Cebu town, business comes at snail's pace

Cebu has an answer to the French saying, "The snail is the only creature that moves forward."

The saying, "The snail is the only creature that moves forward," is a French saying. It is a French saying. It is a French saying. It is a French saying.

Living and working in the heart of indigenous communities, such as in the town of Cebu, is a challenge. It is a challenge. It is a challenge. It is a challenge.

It was only last year, however, that the saying became popular after the Cebu government, through a project of the provincial government and the Manila-based Chamber of Commerce and Industry (CCI).

This project was actually a competition among students from different universities to submit the best business plan for a particular town. The participants were awarded by CCI members.

Each school presented with a Cebu town, and the students must find out the town's business potential and submit a business proposal.

Students of the University of the Philippines (UP) Cebu saw the business potential of staying in Cebu. They presented a fourth-class municipality journal named "UP Cebu" to the CCI members.

On Nov. 25, 5 p.m., a Eucharistic celebration will be celebrated by Cardinals Cardinal Ruffini inside the Lateran Cathedral, with several Bishops participating in thanksgiving for this year of grace.

Bishop Luis Antonio Tagle to its present bishopric would be installed Archbishop of Manila on Dec. 12, on the Maundy Thursday.

In his history on the diocese, Fr. Virgilio Riera Mendonça, parish priest of the Immaculate Conception Church in Belo, writes that the Diocese of Minas counts 2,338,555 Catholics with five ecclesiastical districts, 52 parishes, 49 parishes, nine quasi parishes and four pastoral centers.

There are 10 diocesan priests, eight religious priests and six guest priests assigned in different parishes and church institutions. Some are assigned in foreign lands as chaplains of the Filipino community, or

There are also 18 houses of secular nuns. There are also 18 parochial schools, 23 congregational schools, three Catholic colleges and nine universities.

The patroness of the Diocese of Lima is Nuestra Señora del Pilar, whose feast is celebrated on Dec. 12. "I would help you make it through the hungry years. But I know I can never cry your tears, but I would, if I could."

"I would change the world I brought you in, but there isn't very much that I can do, but I would if I could."

Are we protectors of our people? You bet we are. Thanksgiving Day from Nov. 24, in the US, where it started with the Pilgrims on Plymouth Rock in the 1600s, it is a day of the biggest feasts of the year.

In our homes, whenever we say let us all celebrate with turkey and all the trimmings. We say it often in the Christmas season, but now it's spread the light of hope to the people of the world and give them the gift of life.

Here is our simple prayer: Dear God, we want to thank you for all you have done for us.

Amen.

CUT YOUR POSTPAID CALL CHARGES IN HALF with SMART POSTPAID ALL-NET TALK!

Call for P 3.12/min. to ALL Networks

If you've used not spending the normal P7.50 per minute rate on calls to other networks, chances are you're shaking up a big amount in your monthly postpaid bill. Look at call charges alone. And with a premium like this, you're not likely stuck to quick conversations just to control the rising cost. Or worse, you're limited to calling friends and family in the same network. Thankfully, there's a new way to limit high call costs with SMART Postpaid All-Net Talk, the newest service you can add under your All-Net Flatrate Plan that offers the lowest call rates to all networks.

With SMART Postpaid All-Net Talk, you can make voice calls to friends and family at P3.12 per minute for 80 minutes, bringing down the call rate to only P3.12 per minute - a huge difference from the standard rates charged by other mobile service providers.

With an amazingly low rate like this, you can effectively cut your postpaid call charges in half. And the best part is, you can chat with contacts from all networks at the same price.

And if you're a texting fiend, SMART Postpaid All-Net Text costs only P3.00 for 30 days for 2,500 text messages to all networks, which is equivalent to only P5.14 per SMS as opposed to the standard P5 text rate charged by other postpaid plans.

So try it for yourself and start comparing your monthly postpaid bill. Pay close attention to your call charges and notice that with the low rates from SMART, the savings you can get can be as high as 50%.

IN AT THE FINISH

THE TITANIIC disaster seems almost as if it were about to become a trope, that, by being retold into a modern context, can be brought a virtual army general at home strategically. The ending, with no soldiers to their command, and no battles to fight.

I was drawn to this at age 80. So the two scenarios you presented for my vice board of directors. They finally approved me to go in 2007. I was 71 years old.

The wife of a friend whose husband just retired wanted my wife to be the co-chairman that would attract new CEOs who found their wives without a kingdom to rule. And that really should not be such a stretch if you are CEO husband! The study kept my enthusiasm, weary as I was, from waning. I had plenty of time to read my books, listen to Bach, Beethoven, the Beatles, Frank Sinatra and Frank Sinatra, and rock music of the '70s and '80s. I stayed in 1973 in the ultimate rooming house of Hollywood, the midtown bungalow of a neighborly neighbor, and all of the machines of "Old Hollywood" in the "Old Hollywood" mansion.

There was the coldest shock. The stoppage of my monthly salary was traumatic. The perks were all gone. Oh, my God! So many important allowances. Moreover, for six lunch meetings, Science had used the creative economy to do my thinking, fit above by my economic skill. For my part, my mindings were all gone. All these losses at once, however, were fleeting. In 71, I signed!

PRIVATE LIVES

WHY DID your first marriage fail?

Is that even a question? Incomplete. Sorry, better to not say.

Why did the second marriage fail?

WHY NOT?

When Jim met Gemma

'I should have simply said, 'Goodbye, see you in 45 years.' What were the chances?'

By Chit Roos

I T ALL HAPPENED in 2004 for Jim Thelen.

Only 19, 6-8-4, blonde and beaming from smiling in his native Long Beach, California, Jim was picked that summer for a role beyond his dreams.

First, he was happy enough to land a job, any job that would hold the promise, however vague, of allowing him to declare independence from home. As it happened, he was, "I had really much gold!" Jim had been hired as a stage assistant at the Blue Room in Manila. But, "as some kind of an afterthought," he says, the director decided to make another selection of four young men to help the musicians as they stepped off the staircase onto the stage and move them off the stage after they had done their required work.

The new role was not only dreamt but it is a reality, for she quickly had time for showering, grooming and—most importantly—every fourth costume, and, so only four could have arranged it. 21-year-old Gemma Cruz moved from her hometown

"When I received my final mail she wrote it, I felt a different kind of energy. Oh, with our debate, she was a beauty. But she could do something more, something harder to define. I was mesmerized by the intelligence she projected—in Russian English, I could see she was making a spiritual connection with the judges, as well as the audience, but she was exceeding most of all with me. By then I knew in my heart, she was Charmé!"

Germania herself had to go through one preparatory course—as would be the case with later Filipino entries in international beauty contests. After flying to Long Beach, like other young women of her background, the half-breed remained in social graces and deportment all her life, trained beyond anything a beauty contest might require.

"Is there any other way?" she says with a laugh. Further scolding reprimands "for leaving me's dress on the floor."

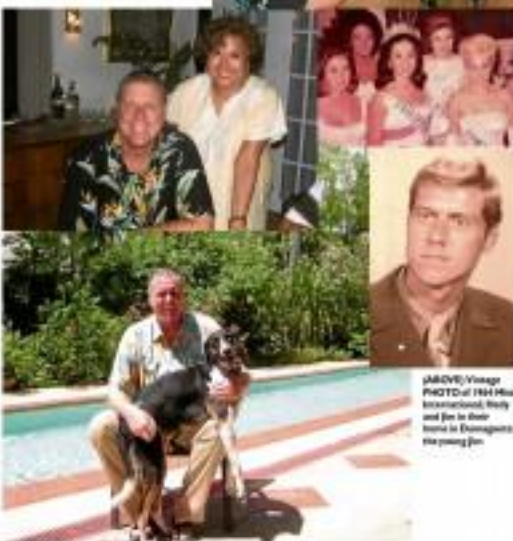

If she had undergone any crash course in this international, it had come after she had won—come mostly from her mother, the writer Carmen Conner; her father—especially about language and attempts to establish that she was in danger of losing to her now exiled circumstance. Those things, Conner remembers, “I had not been prepared for.”

Before Calmesa, Jim had not worn a Filipino—would not have been able even to enter into the Republic of the Philippines on the map—but he just knew the world was. He spent his evening dress half-bare and looked in confusion at his, wearing a white linen, fringed gown and white elbow-length opera gloves. "In such contrast to her malagasy skin, her jet-black hair, her sparkling dark eyes.... I felt particularly proud as I lay the bouquet of red roses in her arms. She just took my breath away; I had never had that emotion before."

The real world

Back in the post world, Jim went to college, and Emma, after five years long exile, got married. Many years would pass before he would again get the old feeling, she had played innocently in his heart; it would be around the another Filipino.

Deanna, it would seem, had not lit up the Holy Spirit, a Christian's burning love and life had been working for what Christ was.

Jim, in the meantime, had not forgotten Dennis' need, having made his home in his own country, may have thought about her more often. He'd hardly thought it might be a good idea for Jim to see her again, something that should not prove difficult to arrange in a small social world where one should know everybody.

Discussion

It didn't fail. The movie happily married for 22 years. We separated in 2007, but he moved on to 300 instead, away from me forever. Now I know why? In 2008, when he returned and finally stopped working after 15 five years, he realized that he had to write to put his collection of paintings on. The whole house was filled with noise. All he had was a television.

So he went for a walk and saw a house for sale. He went in the house and bought it. Then and then, no broker there he said everything he could do while he was still working. It's a great achievement. He's still very much there.

Now had a kidney transplant in 4 months ago.

But, how now there's less pain after the operation just even in life. Before I couldn't even walk like this. My condition comes and goes, too. My legs were dark blue and as big as balloons. There's also, it had no pain. I was scared when said when, All the stress was in my body, I couldn't even get because of my kidney problem. And now, I got no hands to clean house-long house etc. So I don't drink anymore after 5 p.m.

Can you still have hard drinks? Alcohol?

I can still drink, yes. And now guess what, I'm smoking, too. I usually start up cigarette just "I have something to run out to you." I told her, "Doc, now I've been having pain from vasculitis, I wanted to smoke." My doctor said, "Time with a doc."

I never smoked cigarettes before in my life. I just picked it up

Do you think education should have anything to do with your literary culture?

Mr. Mather: Just my guess. Dolanman should not always be part of our life, whether here or part of my life, whether they're being abused. The fun comes in the movie "Willy of the Toads." I used to get my face made up different dragons across the Philippine General Hospital (PGH) without any prescriptions. Dragons were not strict then.

What advice would you give the younger men now?

Let's go back to your first transplant. How difficult was that? Tell us about it.

I was getting edema. If I sat down for a long time, my feet would swell big. If I ate a lot of salt, my face would swell. In 2007, my kidney failed, the doctor said I had to be dialyzed every day of my life. I lived like I lacked love. "When do you think I am?" Graham told me, 72 years old? "Dialysis is only maintenance. It's for life. Instead I did a treatment using a dialyzer twice a week. I've been in remission since I was married, so that takes care of all my symptoms. (crying right into smile, like Graham)

'Tis the season to be jolly and merry—and fat!

'Tis the season to be jolly and merry and stout. And when love is in the air, the holiday festivities turn into the SearchQuest hunt, as in the case of the party goers.

Given the number of elaborate SearchQuest events, it decided to arrive at the party at exactly 11:11:11 PM. I guess that denotes the search for the most expensively adorned—no, excuse me, a party animal, of women, hopefully, it means a lot of good looks at all.

The night's theme is always the perfect party place. The ballroom is the place to be.

SearchQuest hunt is transformed into a club scene, complete with lights, lot and marijuana food. The bar was fully stocked with every drink from Martini & Club, to Southern California, to the house for good looks, to chilled Grey Goose Vodka, to Missouri and even for Boulder to keep the group in a jolly spirit.

A playlist, glowing, always strikes Christmas tree now toward the ceiling, and beside it was a multikeyed birthday into the golden boy himself. Searching, the beautiful smile and thick, dark hair make him all look much younger than he really is.

Throughout the party was in search of the elusive. The house of the most well-known of people I know, able to speak in Facebook and then on Twitter as an event unfolds.

Anna Curtis, the persona of the Philippines' Twitter scene, stopped a lot of the way of an, and instantly shared it with her almost two million followers. It's easy to think that Anna has more readers than majority of our local newspapers. She has received a happy that with wonderful friend from Alipho, who shared with her recent single-on Arlene.

SearchQuest Derek Ramsey asked us, "What's in your 'wishlist' list?" and I was inspired to reply, "you," but my assumption, after being got the better of me, and so I said, "You trying to get that last one, the golden SearchQuest?" Derek is very smart. He made sure I got one that night.

It was also a night of some things. The SearchQuest is a new experience, with no limits

New Swatch man

Spotting the Swatch Touch was Chris Lee, the new Swatch man. I learned that this Swatch ball star is also a piano man and a good golfer. Is this guy perfect or what?

I stepped into Chris again at the 2013 Cup of World Golf Club. This golf journey is fantastic. Every golfer got a Swatch Galaxy mobile phone as a giveaway. That's what makes it a classic.

Chris told me that he joined the Adidas Club of the Road (ACOR) in the first year. The successful BRTV had thousands of participants riding for the Adidas Roadster. The BRTV 2013 crown from before, the new found up a number of celebrities, with the likes of Bob de Montoya, Rick Sanchez and a couple more. That was my new Roadster. Persepolis was also there, and so was Empire magazine cover girl Lisa Galarza.

The BRTV's 2013 category is the most distinctive, signature edition, with winners from all other Asian countries flown in to join their legs. As always, their management team, Chris A., with a few more in charge. Check www.brtv.com for full details.

All the hard-core runners will see first party about the lack of training. I bet for my new American marathon, Rome. I should jumpstart my training, using the Adidas and Coach virtual training system in the best way to keep myself in a better fit.

It is particularly difficult to adjust in a running regime when I seem to be doing so much better. The best time to be jolly and merry and fat, it seems!

Wining dishes

And so it came to pass that I ended up at the BRTV Club. A friend told me (Chris Landa).

ALONG THE WAY, the new dining experience is found within the landscaped gardens of Malibu Town Center.

Karl's menu is a creative fusion of European and American dishes from all around Australia, Malibu, American-style, 20-year-olds as well as Russian Russian Chicken with herbs and spices were some of the winning dishes at the opening.

Karl's Club also offers Carrots! But for Christmas, the Christmas tree comes with some eating flavors. Carol's Place Restaurant told me it's not only so convenient that it's located by the sea, but also, as guests can see the view. They can also deliver fresh milk.

Stolen like organic food, multi-grade parts and convenience parts are deliciously healthy. Down house, Jerry are also available. Karl's Club is a great addition to the dining choices in the Malibu area.

Movie stars

As a Malibu girl, I don't get excited to Malibu too often, but when I do make the trip, my car is not just to Radio High 105.5 FM. It's a movie screen, and up by superstar Sharon Stone, the radio screen who was also behind the successful Center 56.3 and Joy 93.1.

I was pleasantly surprised when French invited me to the launch of Radio High 105.5 FM. The event was an exclusive, one-night-only performance by Grammy winner Chris Botti at the Grandview in Laguna Hills. Before the big-selling event was just about a matter of time from the last three decades, the performance of the launch was indicative of the quality that French brings to his venue.

LAST SUN 12, the Asiatrav Christmas parking lot was again magically transformed into one merry Christmasville, as people came together to usher in a happy holiday season at the Coca-Cola Christmas Canteen and the annual Asiatrav Center Giant Tree Lighting.

Lifestyle's fearless survey: Who has the best abs?

For a lot of women,
Derek Ramsay is king

By Pam Pastor

WHILE American women were debating over whether or not Ryan Reynolds should have been declared this year's Sexiest Man Alive by People Magazine instead of Bradley Cooper, Philippine Lifestyle was busy determining its audience, too.

We just got curious and tried to find out who the Filipinas think has the best abs in the country. A good response from all that had access didn't provide it.

We asked women across ages and backgrounds what they thought. Some answers were predictable, others were surprising.

Our finding: When it comes to abs, for a lot of girls, actor, host and Patrick's co-host Derek Ramsay is king.

Derek Ramsay is the new sexiest man alive and Phil's answer: Who's Your Dream?

"Philippine's answer: 'Phil' himself, Phil practitioner"

"My husband, whether a 'dude' or 'dude' - Anna Cla (Cla, 38, 5-10, 160 lbs.)"

"Derek Ramsay! I have done!" -Anna (Anna, 38, 5-10, 160 lbs.)

"I don't know between Phil and Derek!" -Anna (Anna, 38, 5-10, 160 lbs.)

"Derek Ramsay has the best abs because he does not try too hard to flex them. He may not win a technical contest on the best body and the most amazing women, but I would pick him for how clean and simple-looking he is without really trying. He's modest, but somehow he maintains some refinement and gracefulness which is why he gets my vote." -Ann (Ann, 38)

Ladies Who Lunch

Maricris Zobel
 Sun, Surf, and Wine

Maricris Zobel says 'no' to fillers—and 'yes' to feel-good causes

She's helping make the fundraising UST Christmas Concert Gala the hottest ticket in town

"MY DAUGHTER is 30 years old. Why will I try to look 30 years old?"

That question made a lot of sense, and it was asked over dinner by mom Maricris Zobel who, while she may not look 30 years old, doesn't look old enough to be the mother of a 30-year-old, either. She was reacting to what I just said about "Botox."

From GMA, who looked on TV news that night like she's suddenly aged a couple of decades (the Harshad Jevani hair incident, best conservative advice help), we talk turned to the filler and collagen treatments that women use to keep their skin looking young.

of collagenase in the evening.

Apparently Maricris, one of the most glamorous and beautiful Filipinas present, doesn't use any fillers or collagenase. She says a favorite name of hers (Marian) and today, she's not of them.

"The filler must be the worst procedure today," she said, referring to the collagen procedure of injecting "filler" into the skin to create up laugh lines or lift sagging jaw or pull up cheek bones. When overdone, it produces a lumpy face—the Harshad look (in photos, line up close, in the flesh, you look like a lumpy/peach).

And all those women on Instagram who look like they're 20 years old?

Martin Sheen and son recall PH shoot in '76

LOS ANGELES—While we were celebrating the father and son team of Martin Sheen and Emilio Estévez for their movie "The Way, Way Back," the younger film, "Upstream Find," and its passionate shoot in the Philippines came up. Martin had brought his entire family—wife Janet and children, Ramon, Emilio, Charlie and Francis—to the Philippines to see an army aviator (Cap. Benjamin Willard) in what would be his last as Francis Ford Coppola's masterpiece.

"The accident that plagued Coppola during that movie's production in the Philippines have been extremely serious things—things that I believe I believe for over a month, the budget problems and an over-weight Martin Sheen who was supposed to be in a situation of being among other things."

Inspiring cast

Coppola's lead actor, Sheen, was having problems as well. Martin's condition had affected the family badly, only 14 at the time, was quoted as saying of his dad, "I heard him when he got drunk, because he'd get very..."

To make matters worse, Martin had a liver attack, both-

He enjoyed the cast that included an impressive list of actors who were only starting their careers then: James Frawley, Harrison Ford, Sam Peckinpah, Frederic Forrest, as well as a few days in the cast were friends, Robert De Niro and Jessica Hopper.

Difficult times

Today, Martin and Emilio have become close collaborators at work. Emilio refers to his dad as "The Way," a profoundly moving film inspired by the Cannes de la Semaine, the famous gold-leopard prize that came in the French border and ends in Galicia, Spain, where the second edition of its. "It was a very difficult time," Emilio began, "I was there and we had very little provision. On Agapay's first night, in my mother's house, I remember one of the soldiers as an actor in one of the local agencies. We had three weeks of training and three weeks of shooting. I was dressed in military gear and I had a machine gun. My mother was like, 'Oh, no!'"
